ABSTRACT

This bibliography contains 130 entries of English-language written materials available from the National Agricultural Library's (NAL) AGRICOLA database. Each of the entries, including books, studies, reports, and so forth, pertains to rural America's elderly population. Each entry includes bibliographical information and the NAL call number. Some entries also include abstracts. A large portion of the cited material focuses on the elderly populations in specific rural regions or states. Other subjects include independence of older people, self-esteem, medical care, demographics, and socioeconomic problems involving the elderly. The document also gives ordering information and an author index. All the listed citations were entered in the database between January 1979 and April 1988. (TES)

Bibliographies in the Quick Bibliography Series of the National Agricultural Library, are intended primarily for current awareness, and as the title of the series implies, are not indepth exhaustive bibliographies on any given subject. However, the citations are a substantial resource for recent investigations on a given topic. They also serve the purpose of bringing the literature of agriculture to the interested user who, in many cases, could not access it by any other means. The bibliographies are derived from computerized on-line searches of the AGRICOLA data base. Timeliness of topic and evidence of extensive interest are the selection criteria.

The author/searcher determines the purpose, length, and search strategy of the Quick Bibliography. Information regarding these is available upon request from the author/searcher.

Copies of this bibliography may be made or used for distribution without prior approval. The inclusion or omission of a particular publication or citation may not be construed as endorsement or disapproval.

To request a copy of a bibliography in this series, send the title, series number and self-addressed gummed label to:

Extract: This report was developed to analyze prior population projections and assess their reliability for use by organizations and agencies in North Dakota. Three demographic tools were used, the population projection, the population estimate, and the population report. Two assumptions were made. First, the low birth rate level was selected and second, a migration rate equivalent to one-half the 1960/70 migration rate was used. The results indicate that population projections made for 1977 showed a high degree of reliability when compared with the 1980 Census of Population. The number of elderly in North Dakota will continue to rise. Because many of the elderly live in rural areas the availability of services is limited.

Housing of the rural elderly.
Arnold, G.D. Washington, D.C. : The Service. Rural development research report - United States Dept. of Agriculture, Economic Research Service. July 1984. (42). 11 p. Includes 14 references. (NAL Call No.: DNAL AGE aHT392.A53).
Extract: The elderly, especially the rural elderly, are more likely to have housing problems than other groups. The number of rural elderly households increased 16 percent between 1974 and 1979 compared with an increase of only 10 percent for all U.S. households. In 1979, 15 percent of U.S. rural elderly heads of household lived in inadequate housing compared with 8 percent of the urban elderly. Inadequate housing has one or more of the following flaws, among others: incomplete plumbing facilities, incomplete kitchen facilities, leaking roof, holes in walls or ceilings, and exposed wiring. In addition, one out of five elderly homeowners in rural areas and about half of elderly renters had troule affording their homes.

Extract: This report summarizes the results of a needs assessment of clients in the Title XX "Personal Care Assessment" program of the Area 13-A Agency on Aging in Vincennes, Indiana. This report includes the results of information collected by the "initial contact form", a survey instrument used by the PCA coordinator during the initial visit to the client. The interviews were conducted between January and June, 1981. The original form of the initial contact questionnaire was revised during this reporting period so that 235 clients responded to the old form and 80 clients responded to the new form.

Extract: Elderly homeowners should look before they leap into one of the new plans to tap the idle value of their home equity and turn it into cash. While such an equity conversion plan may be just what they've been looking for, the plans can be difficult to evaluate. Some plans will increase their income taxes or make them ineligible for public assistance. Before deciding, it would pay to look into other sources of financial aid, such as a loan secured by a traditional mortgage or a low-interest loan from a State government.
